Summary

Newspaper Chase is a fictional story about a thief who steals a very expensive painting from an art gallery. At the beginning of the story Harry, the thief, comes into the art gallery and cuts the painting from its frame. On the way out he knocks over a table and breaks a beautiful vase. He laughs because he has broken a very expensive object.

Harry goes back to the rooming house where he rents a room, and hides the painting under his bed. Janey, the daughter of the rooming house owner, thinks recycling is very important – she always recycles bottles and newspapers. On Friday in the story she collects old newspapers from the house, including the newspaper under Harry's bed! She puts them in a box to give to the recycling van.

Harry is not at home. He is trying to sell the painting. He comes home as Janey is putting the box in the van. He gets very worried and jumps into the van to find his newspaper. Janey sees a piece of broken glass in his shoe. It is the glass from the beautiful vase and Janey has seen the vase on the news on television. She calls the police and they come and take Harry away.

Background and themes

Justice: Harry does a bad thing. He steals a painting to make money for himself. He is very greedy and the public can no longer see and admire the painting. But at the end of the story justice prevails and he gets what he deserves.

Social responsibility: Janey knows that Harry has done something very wrong so she calls the police. She is socially responsible and helps get the painting back for everyone to admire.

Responsibility for the environment: recycling is very important. Without it the world's natural resources will eventually run out. It is not good to waste anything that can be recycled.
