Sales handle: A sister and brother battle it out in this story of imagination, reading, and tigers!

Book description: When a boy is left in the care of his older sister, he begs her to read him his favorite book, but she's too absorbed in her own reading to pay him any attention. She won't be distracted, even when the boy finds a ravenous tiger hiding in his soup! His sister misses all the action; only after the steamy beast is slain does she return to the table with her brother and finally agree to read to him. But is the tiger really gone?

The sibling relationship is endearingly realistic, with a good deal of hesitation and disinterest on the sister's side—which is gradually overcome by responsibilities and fondness for her charge. A young boy is left at home with his sister in charge. He pesters her to read to him and she puts him off, instead making a bowl of alphabet soup for his lunch. While the soup is cooling, the steam turns into, you guessed it, a tiger in the soup. The boy fights back with a spoon, romping through the house, until the sister warms the soup up in the microwave. The sister, exasperated with her brother, finally agrees to read the book.
