Borderlands/La Frontera: The New Mestiza is a 1987 semi-autobiographical work by Gloria E. Anzaldúa that examines the Chicano and Latino experience through the lens of issues such as gender, identity, race, and colonialism. Borderlands is considered to be Anzaldúa's most well-known work and a pioneering piece of Chicana literature. In an interview, Anzaldúa claims to have drawn inspiration from the ethnic and social community of her youth as well as from her experiences as a woman of color in academia Thus the United States portrays the history of the border as one of military victory, and economic justification. They conquered the land, and made it more valuable and profitable through the imposition of mass agriculture. Anzaldúa ends this paragraph on the history of Indigenous people in northern Mexico with a statement grounded in mythology: "the southwest, Aztlan"land of the herons, land of whiteness, the Edenic place of origin for the Aztecs" (4). The fact that the southwest was "the Edenic place of origin for the Aztecs" becomes just as important of a justification for Indigenous people's.
