Abraham: A Journey to the Heart of Three Worlds has been added to your Cart. Add gift options. Buy used. The book is broken up into a well written explanation of Abraham's significance and importance to three of the world's major religions and though different, explains how much they have in common in Abraham. Wonderful book for individual reading or your small adult study group. Read more. Originally published: New York : W. Morrow, 2002. Presents an examination of the Biblical patriarch Abraham, the common ancestor of Christians, Jews, and Muslims, looking at how he is viewed in each of the faith traditions, and discussing his significance to contemporary political and religious conflicts. All three faiths claim Abraham as their own, and they all assert to be the correct modern day representative of the Abrahamic religious tradition. The book's first half addresses what the Bible and Koran say about Abraham, his call to monotheism, and his sons Isaac and Ishmael. Particularly fascinating are Feiler's discussions of how the three religious traditions invented This book portrays the role of Abraham in the history, theology and contemporary thought in Judaism, Christianity and Islam. I realized at the conclusion of this book that I just completed a journey of my own faith. I have an appreciation for other faiths, I do not believe there is only one faith or one way to God. What I do know is I am comfortable with my choice of Christianity. Abraham: Journey Of Faith by DialogueInternati 3004 views. Nr 305 full course latest 2016 nove by lenasour 1131 views. I would have to design an unconventional journey. If my previous experience in the region involved a journey through three continents, five countries, four war zones this would be a journey through place and time three religions, four millennia, one never-ending war. I would read, travel, seek out scholars, talk to religious leaders, visit his natural domain, even go home to mine, because I quickly realized that to understand Abraham I had to understand his heirs. And there are billions of those. Despite countless revolutions in the history of ideas, Abraham remains a defining figure for half the Abraham. lighting six candles at the Western Wall. Muslims turn east. Today is the last Friday of Ramadan, and at noon clerics will hold a massive prayer service with two hundred thousand bending as one. Today is not rare.
