God and Cosmos: A Christian View of Time, Space, and the Universe

By John Byl

Banner of Truth. Paperback. Condition: New. 243 pages. Dimensions: 8.5in. x 5.5in. x 0.8in. In his book A Brief History of Time, the famous Cambridge cosmologist Stephen Hawking held out the prospect of a complete theory of the universe by means of which we would know why it is that we and the universe exist. . . then we would know the mind of God. Christian mathematician John Byl disagrees: Hawking overestimates the value of a Theory-of-Everything, while underestimating the content of God's mind. We already have in Scripture a source of knowledge superior to all other sources and already know the mind of God, so far as He has been pleased to reveal it to us. On this basis, Byl questions much of modern cosmology, including the Big-Bang theory of origins. He deals with the limitations of human knowledge, biblical teaching relevant to cosmology, the quest for extra-terrestrial intelligence, the existence of the spiritual realm, heaven, angels, life after death, and much else. Byl's approach is a refreshing counter to the dreary and ultimately meaningless outlook of modern cosmology. This item ships from multiple locations. Your book may arrive from Roseburg, OR, La Vergne, TN. Paperback.

This view sees the United States as being especially favored by God and the success in our endeavors in outer space, such as the Moon landing, being the result. Obviously not all of NASA's astronauts have been Christian. Tom considered the idea that evangelical Christians just might not want to spend the money to conduct space exploration, but was very clear in his own opinion. For Tom, whatever Ambrosius's findings may be, Christians have a duty to go into space because God wants us to explore the universe and he wants us to understand as much as we can. For evangelicals uninterested in space exploration, the future is limited and the time we have left is confined to Earth.
