Many who are just learning about the Flipped Classroom might jump to the conclusion that it's all about Khan Academy videos in the classroom. So while I'm grateful for the recent buzz and opportunities for discussion, when it comes down to it, it's not about the videos, it's about learning. What is most exciting is to see the innovation on the front lines, led by classroom teachers, who have taken this idea and modified it into a Flipped learning simplified with Jonathan Bergmann Jonathan Bergmann's website about flipped learning contains research publications and links to useful resources.

Ratings The idea of the flipped classroom is really quite simple. Direct instruction is done through video, or some other digital learning object, which students can individually use before they come to class. This time shift allows the teacher to use class time for work that is either better done as a large group or requires individualized attention by the teacher.
