More than 850 miles of hiking trails traverse the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. They range from easy to difficult and provide half-hour walks to week-long backpacking trips. Below are our favorites from the North Carolina side, nearest the Asheville area. (4 miles round-trip, strenuous) One of the most popular hikes in the Great Smoky Mountains. With an elevation of 4,800 ft., the rocky summit is one of the park's most recognizable geological structures. It's all uphill with 1,700 ft. in elevation gain. LeConte is one of the Smoky Mountains great hikes. It is a long way to the top but it's an interesting experience, hiking through caves and along trails that, at times, cling to the side of the mountain. On a clear day, the view from the top of Mt. LeConte can be magnificent. There are several ways to reach the summit of Mt. LeConte. We hiked up via the Alum Cave Trail, which is the focus of this post. However, you can also summit Mt. LeConte via the Boulevard Trail and Rainbow Falls. The Alum Cave Trail starts at the Alum Cave Bluffs Trailhead parking lot, located right on US-441 in Great Smoky Mountains National Park. From Gatlinburg, it is a 13-mile drive (30 minutes). There are several parking lots here.
