Description:

Young fans of the unflappable Sam-I-am will be pleased as punch to discover the plethora of flaps to lift in this 10-page board book version of the Dr. Seuss classic. Sam-I-am does his very best to convince a more finicky Seuss character to try this rather unusual delicacy. Would you? Could you? In a car?

Eat them! Eat them! Here they are.

You may like them. You will see.

You may like them in a tree!

To which the exasperated doubter replies: I would not, could not, in a tree.

Not in a car!

You let me be.

On every page readers will find sturdy, easy-to-lift flaps behind which reside the familiar characters and lines of the unique 1960 classic--except for the last page. Here, blank spaces lurk behind the flaps, just waiting to be filled in with peel-off pictures from the accompanying sheet of silly stickers. Green eggs and ham; You may be able to have them in a box and with a fox, but can you make them at home? Yes, you can! With a clever bit of kitchen chemistry you can easily make your own green eggs, without any food colouring! The secret lies in a special pigment found in ordinary red cabbage, when cabbage juice is introduced to the alkaline egg whites the change in the pH causes the purple juice to turn a greenish-blue colour, it's completely harmless and produces a neat effect. To make your own green eggs pour a small amount of the red cabbage juice into your bowl of egg white and gently whisk together, you should see a colour change almost immediately. Add Tip.
