Epilogue : growth, a ten-step process. Here's seven characteristics of highly effective church leaders. And I think they are in part what makes each of them effective in their own realm. And there is absolutely nothing stopping you from adopting each of the characteristics in your own leadership starting today. Seven Surprising and Endearing Characteristics. So what do leaders like Andy Stanley, Jon Acuff, Jeff Henderson, Derwin Gray, Tony Morgan, Kara Powell, Casey Graham, Ron Edmondson and others have in common? Of course they're gifted speakers, writers, thinkers, strategists and more. But they also do the following seven things very, very well. The Antioch Effect is a balanced church growth book, which emphasizes the spiritual condition of the church without discounting the importance of methods and strategy. Using the church of Antioch as his model church, Hemphill examines eight characteristics of an effective church. They are supernatural power, worship, prayer, leadership, fellowship, vision, evangelistic passion and discipleship. The book is written from the perspective of a Southern Baptist church consultant who combines the experience of both a practitioner and a consultant. At times I thought the book bogged down but it was w Highly-effective and conducive to student-centered learning. But what does that mean? The reality is, there is no single answer because teaching and learning are awkward to consider as single events or individual "things." This is all a bunch of rhetoric until we put on our white coats and study it under a microscope, at which point abstractions like curiosity, authenticity, self-knowledge, and affection will be hard to pin down. So we put together one take on the characteristics of a highly effective classroom. They can act as a kind of criteria to measure your own against--see if you notice a

Epilogue : growth, a ten-step process. I spent the last 15 years of my life reverse engineering the characteristics of great speakers. I based my finding on speakers like Tony Robbins, Seth Godin, and Steve Jobs. I summarized the findings into the top 9 proven characteristics of effective public speakers that you should emulate to become an influential and inspiring speaker. 1- Confidence: Be certain that you will give a spectacular presentation. Your audience wants to root for you. Give them a reason to do so by being secure in your abilities. A study published by the University of Wolverhampton stated that a highly confident speaker is viewed as more credible than a less confident speaker.
