Fashion brands and fashion retailers have also affected by the emergence of the millennial generation (also known as "Generation Y"), generally considered to be those people born after 1980. Therefore, the new PLI treatise "Fashion Law and Business: Brands & Retailers" is structured on the presumption that fashion law can be best examined in the context of an understanding of the business and operations of the fashion industry. Each chapter focuses on an aspect of the fashion business and the related legal issues: Chapter 1 "Starting a Fashion Company" discusses the many considerations involved in starting a company in the fashion industry. For those interested, Fashion Law and Business: Brands & Retailers by Lois Herzeca and Howard Hogan was recently published, and is available for purchase here. The book unravels the complexities of the global fashion industry, and provides guidance on the wide range of legal and business issues faced by fashion industry participants, including designers, suppliers, manufacturers of apparel and accessories, and retailers. It covers the following topics: how patent, trademark and copyright law have been applied to the fashion industry and their impact in such areas as gray market goods and counterfeiting. the contractual relationships and regulatory issues applicable to the design and production of fashion products. Fashion Law and Business: Brands & Retailers. Howard S. Hogan. Hardcover. $165.00. Only 1 left in stock (more on the way). A Practical Guide to Fashion Law and Compliance. Deanna Clark-Esposito. 5.0 out of 5 stars 2. Paperback. $61.57. Herzeca and Hogan provide an accessible overview of key issues facing any fashion business, with case studies, examples, and sample forms that will help people working at any level of the industry. The multiple layers of intellectual property and advertising law can seem impossibly complex, but Fashion Law and Business clearly sets out each area a business must consider. -Rebecca L. Tushnet, Professor of Law, Georgetown University Law Center and author, 43(B)log.
