Vocational training also known as vocational education and training (VET) basically focuses on practical applications of the skills. It works as a connecting link between theoretical education and the real working environment and, students can join these types of programs at the school level or post-secondary level as well. Vocational Training and Trade institution has been growing prominently, this causes more innovative and highly skilled workers to solve problems in our current fast-paced society. Vocational training is a one of a kind learning experience that specializes in the fields of crafts, trades, and careers at various levels. It is also related to apprenticeships learning. Understanding Vocational Training. Cle

Vocational training and general education are the two predominant forms of secondary schooling around the world. Most studies that compare the effect of vocational and general education on labor market outcomes in the cross-section suffer from selection bias since less able students are more likely to enroll in vocational programs. Whereas the United States emphasizes formal general education in secondary schools, much of Europe relies on vocational training and apprenticeships to prepare its workforce for the labor market. Goldin (2000, p. 277) notes the essential trade-off between these different approaches: "Formal, school based education enabled American youths to change occupations over their lifetimes and to respond rapidly to technological change. Vocational education at the secondary level has traditionally had several objectives, including providing students with general employability skills and preparing them to enter paid and unpaid employment in specific occupations. However, in recent years, the goals of vocational education have expanded to include preparing students not only for entry into work but also for career advancement and entry into further education and training. For instance, educators have been called upon to integrate academic and vocational education. Secondary vocational education is provided primarily through Vocational education and training, Innovation Management, Technology Transfer, social innovation. Territorio, industria e innovaci3n. Los casos de Catalu±a y Arag3n." We thus compare the evolution of employment and earnings over the life course for holders of vocational and general education at the upper-secondary level. We use a cohort design for Switzerland, the OECD country with the highest share of youth undertaking vocational education. Based on the Swiss Labour Force Survey 1991-2014 and the Swiss Household Panel 1999-2015, our results show that employment prospects remain as good for vocational as for general education over the second half of workers' careers.
