We+the+People+An+Introduction+to+American+Politics+9th.pdf. Uploaded by. Zhu Yanni. Even though the relationship between the citizen and the government is central to American government, the government does not necessarily do what the majority of the people want. Government affects our lives every day. Different types of government are defined by how powerful the government is and how free the people are. Politics in America changed when more people won the right to participate. The identity and characteristics of Americans have changed over time. Liberty, equality, and democracy are core American values, though they often come into conflict with one another.
