part_4 The Chronicles of Narnia series.Â The Silver Chair, p.1. Part #4 of The Chronicles of Narnia series by C. S. Lewis. 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14. Behind the gym. IT was a dull autumn day and Jill Pole was crying behind the gym. She was crying because they had been bullying her. This is not going to be a school story, so I shall say as little as possible about Jill's school, which is not a pleasant subject. It was "Co-educational," a school for both boys and girls, what used to be called a "mixed" school; some said it was not nearly so mixed as the minds of the people who ran it. In 2013, three years after the release of the third Narnia movie, The Mark Gordon Company announced they were developing The Chronicles of Narnia: The Silver Chair. Screenwriter David Magee and Director Joe Johnston later signed on. But, the project was eventually abandoned, and now Netflix is developing their own Narnia series and movies.Â 1. It was a reboot. Director Joe Johnston said the movie would be "œset apart from the films in the other trilogy" from Walden Media. 2. Jill's backstory was expanded. The first few pages of the book broadly describe the situation at Jill and Eustace's school. Magee said that a huge challenge in writing the script was "œfleshing out Jill's back story for the film in a way that builds upon and honors the original book." The Chronicles of Narnia saga continues in this sequel produced by Walt Disney Pictures and penned by Oscar-nominated Life of Pi screenwriter David Magee.Â There are no featured audience reviews for The Chronicles of Narnia: The Silver Chair at this time.
