The Indian As An Enemy: An Analysis of the Indian Question in East Africa

By Randolph M.K. Joalahlaie

AUTHORHOUSE, United States, 2010. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 198 x 126 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.The Indian as an Enemy raises provocative questions which acknowledge the historic role of the middleman minority on the African continent. For example, what do we know about the Arabs in Libya, Mali and Sudan? What about the Lebanese in Ghana and the rest of West Africa? What should we think about the increasing specter of the Chinese communist regime and their pseudo business investments from Nigeria to Madagascar? What can be said about the seemingly infinite hoards of South Asians in South, Central and particularly East Africa? Are these groups - all alien to Africa - in any way responsible for the current malaise on the continent? Are they and have they been exploiters in their own right? Can Africa develop as long as they are present? This project is designed to shed light on the historical and continuing role of these people in African societies. Focusing on East Africa, this terse book will address the Indian question. In the words of author Randolph M.K. Joalahlaie, it will address it honestly and from the oft-muted perspective of...

Islam on the East African coast. The earliest concrete evidence of Islam and Muslims in eastern Africa is a mosque foundation in Lamu where gold, silver and copper coins dated AD 830 were found during an excavation in 1984. The oldest intact building in eastern Africa is a functioning mosque at Kizimkazi in the predominantly "Shirazi" region of southern Unguja (Zanzibar) Island dated AD 1007. This implies that the coastal and island settlements in East Africa were Muslim before the "all over the Indian Ocean - Batuta worked as a Kadhi, Supreme Muslim Jurist, in the Maldives for one year using Arabic as his working language; and Maldivian, an Indo-Aryan language, is still written in the Arabic script. Clarke, Colin et al. The East India Company mistreated the Indian soldiers and discriminated between the Indian and the European soldiers. While the soldiers knew that the British were using factors like religion and caste against them, the news of the newly introduced Enfield P-53 rifles using cartridges made out of fat extracted from beef and pork sparked a widespread rebellion against the British. Since the soldiers had to bite the cartridge in order to load the rifle, it did not go down well with the Hindu and Muslim soldiers as it hurt their religious belief. Gandhi had mastered the methods of civil disobedience through non-violent means in South Africa, where he worked as a barrister. In 1914, many political prisoners were freed by General Jan Smuts, thanks to Gandhi's non-violent protests. East Africa or Eastern Africa is the eastern subregion of the African continent, variably defined by geography. In the United Nations Statistics Division scheme of geographic regions, 20 territories make up Eastern Africa: Tanzania, Kenya, Uganda, Rwanda, Burundi and South Sudan are members of the East African Community (EAC). The first five are also included in the African Great Lakes region. Burundi and Rwanda are at times also considered to be part of Central Africa. The Indian Ocean Region (IOR) is one of the most areas of the world in human terms. It includes a wide variety of races, cultures, and religions. The level of political stability, the quality of governance, demographic pressures, ethnic and sectarian tensions, and the pace of economic growth create a different mix of opportunity and risk in each state. This can affect mid- and long-term development and sometimes creates near-term problems in stability that can trigger internal or civil conflict. This study provides a comprehensive overview of the subregions and countries in the IOR, drawing he
